A Powerful Reform Enables XCMG to Overtake Its Top-notch Competitors?

Having fought hard in construction machinery industry for decades, Wang Min sharply realized that XCMG, growing in its full speed, was right at a critical moment: There are 10% conundrums left to conquer before arriving at the 'Mount Qomolangma' of the company's goals. "But the 10% are just the most difficult part that everybody tries to avoid under ordinary circumstances, and closing this gap is a great challenge and test to your knowledge and capability to solve problems; That's why we should start with the strategic goal of realizing XCMG's mission, to climb to the top of 'Mount Qomolangma', to conduct deep research and think through. If we got slack and stopped trying hard, risks would come find us, and it is a matter of survival I'm talking about!" Wang Min, chairman of XCMG said.

Solving the most impossible conundrums requires out-of-the-box creative thinking and methods. After deep deliberation, Wang Min decided to launch a new campaign destined to be hard-fought.
